The Tell Bell: This is one of those open-hand-to-the-forehead-why-didn't-I-think-of-that items.

The Tell Bell is a call bell -- like hotels used to have at the front desk -- with a larger-than-usual plunger. It sits on the floor next to your door, and you teach your dog to ring it when he wants to go out. Totally do-able, with a halfway intelligent dog and a little effort. Of course, if your dog is devious as well as intelligent he will realize that every time he hits the bell you come running. Endless entertainment for Fido. Each order includes two bells (they come in a choice of four colors), a 30-minute training DVD and a training manual.

For more information go to www.TellBell.com. Available at select pet stores or at Amazon.com. Cost is $24.97.
